Going to the waterfall

Peter decided to walk to the local waterfall, 10 miles away. At the moment he started, his dog ran off from his side and proceeded to the waterfall at a constant 8 miles per hour. As soon as the dog reached the waterfall, it started the return journey to Peter, keeping to the same speed. Once it reached Peter's side again, the dog turned off and ran back towards the waterfall once more. The dog continued this odd behaviour until Peter reached the waterfall. If Peter kept to a constant 4 miles per hour, how far did the dog run in total?

*Answers to be placed in the box in MA7 by 1.20pm on Friday 30th November
